East County Boys & Girls clubs like new Lakeside gym

by Greg Eichelberger

Since it was officially opened for business in September, the new Bob and Kay Hale memorial Gymnasium in Lakeside has hosted literally hundreds of basketball contests, pitting teams of East County Boys & Girls Club members from six to 14 years of age and making this rural venue the place to be for after school round ball action.

Once only frequented by just members of the local club, who had to play most of their games on the road in El Cajon or Santee, the area now has over 200 kids a day coming in to use the state-of-the-art facility, which took 10 years to become a reality.

Once such contest recently saw the Lakeside Green girls (6th through 8th grades) squad, led by legendary coach Don Ransom, go up against a tough group from El Cajon, the Hot Shots, helmed by proven winner, Duane Harris.

Both teams had sub-par records and were made up of a mixed bag of veterans and raw rookies, but each girl played with grit, fire and determination in an effort to pull this one out.

In fact, this one wasn't decided until 12-year-old Jennie Holden, a sixth-grade student at Greenfield Middle School in El Cajon, hit a short jumper with seconds left to give the Greens the victory, 28-27, in one of the most exciting see-saw battles this venue has ever witnessed.

It was also a bitter setback to the El Cajonites, who had taken the lead moments before on Jo-Jo Harris' (Duane's daughter) bucket.

Lakeside's Joelle Bunnell, 12 (with ball), and Jennie Holden, 12, surround El Cajon's Roro Boyd, 12, during a recent girls 10- to 13-year-old division basketball contest held in the new Lakeside club's gymnasium. Club teams from throughout East County are happy to be playing in Lakesides new facility.

"I was very happy that ball went in," said Joelle Bunnell, a seventh-grader at Tierra del Sol Middle School (TDS) and five-year league veteran (In the Boys & Girls Club, each year can contain up to five basketball seasons.), who in addition to pouring in 16 total points in this game, leads the league in scoring.

"I think we have a really good team and a great coach in Don," he said.

One of the youngest players on the squad, Yvonne Zyirek, 10, of Lindo Park Elementary School and a three-year vet herself, echoed those sentiments.

She said that Ransom has taught them so well that they feel they can compete against any team in the area.

Rookie center Kathie Havens, an 11-year-old sixth-grader at TDS, agrees.

"He's fair and makes sure everyone gets a chance to play," she said.

For his part, Ransom said that coaching this group of girls was fun, yet challenging. He added that he knew going in they would have their struggles along the way.

"We ended up 2-12 for the season," he said, "but they played everybody tough and showed a lot of guts and heart out there."

Ransom isn't out of the post-season picture, yet, as his other team (including his daughter, Jamie Nelson), finished 9-3, and played for the championship Friday evening (Results were not available by deadline).

Guts and heart were also prominently on display for the El Cajon young ladies, who finished their campaign at 5-5, losing their final contest to a team from the same city, and thus being eliminated from the play-offs.

The Hot Shots had dropped their first two scrimmages, then went on to post a .500 mark.

The head man was proud of that effort. Coaching for four years, Harris said his philosophy wasn't about winning, although that's the object, but more about learning the game, teaching fundamentals, developing good sportsmanship and having fun.

"If you can't enjoy yourself out there, then what's the use in playing?" he asked, rhetorically.

He praised each of his 11 girls for never giving up and making him, their parents and their club proud.

Both coaches also believe that competitive team sports builds strength, character and an ability to deal with others. It's something that the Boys & Girls Clubs have been promoting for years in their many programs.

Grossmont College AD to let staff help develop program

by Joe Naiman

Some new athletic directors come to a campus with a new idea for the school's program, but Lori Kildal doesn't have any plans for Grossmont College's athletics.

"I am the kind of person that wants input from everyone. It's our department, not my department," she said.

Following the retirement of Felix Rogers at the end of the 1996-97 academic year, Kildal was named Associate Dean of Athletics for Grossmont College.

Kildal recently hosted the first meeting for the department's five-year strategic plan, but left the contents to the staff. The hope is for the plan to be implemented next fall.

Although she is new to Grossmont College, she is no stranger to the Griffins athletic program. She was the women's volleyball coach at Azusa Pacific University for nine years and attempted to recruit several Grossmont College players.

"Colleen (Grossmont women's volleyball coach Colleen Suwara) has a good reputation and has always run a good program. As a four-year coach you're always looking at good players from a school which has a sound program," Kildal said.

Her record at Azusa Pacific included an NAIA District 3 championship. She left Azusa Pacific to become the athletic director of Peru State College, an NAIA school in Nebraska.

At Peru State, Kildal, who at Azusa Pacific had played Point Loma Nazarene College in conference play, returned to Point Loma last year for the NAIA national volleyball championships as an administrator/assistant coach.

Kildal grew up in Colorado, but spent 20 years in the Los Angeles area. She came to California to attend college, starting at Biola University before transferring to Cal Poly Pomona where she obtained her B.S. in Physical Education.

She then served as the athletic director of Northview High School in Covina before taking the coaching job at Azusa Pacific, where she received her M.A. in Education with an emphasis on Physical Education.

While at Azusa Pacific, she spent three years on and off at the University of New Mexico in order to get her Ph.D. in Sports Administration.

Her 14-month tenure at Peru State ended with her desire to return to the West Coast. She looked at several openings before choosing Grossmont College.

"I like San Diego. I like the area," she said of selecting Grossmont. "I know about the reputation of the school, academically and athletically."

As athletic director, Kildal oversees 14 sport programs at Grossmont. Her duties include game management, marketing plans and promotions and other needs of the athletic department.

Lori Kildal

In the fall season, football, women's soccer and women's volleyball all had respectable seasons, but finished out of the playoffs. Men's water polo was eliminated in the first round of the playoffs, and only women's water polo went to the state tournament. "I almost thought maybe I was a bad omen for them," said the new associate dean of athletics.

But winning is only a minor aspect of the entire program, she notes. Maintaining academic requirements for eligibility and and preparing for degrees at four-year colleges are also an important part of the Griffins' athletic program.

While the fall season coaches were disappointed, they hope to rebound next year. One of Kildal's objectives for next year is the return of Rogers, who has expressed interest in serving on the school foundation program.

Kildal spoke with Rogers a couple of times, but won't seek too much advice from him this year. She is trying to leave him alone as she would anyone who has worked as hard as he has. She added that people like Rogers need a rest and a break.

The program Grossmont College develops will also have to be within realistic financial expectations, but Kildal has no regrets about what looks like uncertainty.

"I'm glad I made the change and left Nebraska and came to Grossmont College. People are absolutely wonderful. Everybody works well together," she said. She added that it is the type of camaraderie you need to develop the program that everybody's talks about.

Sheriff's Station not moving out

Recent talk about town has been about the "Sheriffs Station moving out of Lemon Grove." I am informed that this will not happen in the foreseeable future. The station will remain and the complement of deputies and safety services will continue. The high profile of police vehicles and personnel will continue to be in the center of town.

Due to the fact that we are a few blocks adjacent to the city of San Diego, it does put the facility a fur piece from the geographical center of East County in this ever-expanding development of business and residences. Quite probably, Jamul, or even further east would give a more proper radius of operation for the Sheriffs work. And maybe someday, that will be possible and be attainable. However for the present, I would propose a few facts that I believe merit serious consideration in that idea.

First, the Station 60 (Lemon Grove) is a well operated and efficient operation. The carpets do need replacing, but the work is superb. East County is being well served, and the few extra miles traveled are of minimal effect. Astrea, and the cooperative efforts of all law enforcement agencies, make the map a well coordinated plan and a job well done.

Secondly, there is the cost of replacing or adding to the network of policing facilities. There certainly is county-owned land that can be utilized, but that is only a minor part of the expense of a decent station. It would seem to me that the cost versus benefit formula would have to be taken into serious thought for such a move.

Speaking of money, I would think that Supervisor Dianne, and Sheriff Bill should consider the $2 million plus quite a lot that the city of Lemon Grove pays for the contract each year. As they must know, the city owns the Sheriff Station facility, and it is a ready made police station. When the City Hall/Sheriffs Station was built, it was looking ahead to the day when a city police department might be an option. While the service from the Sheriff has been exceptional, over the years the contracts have been ever increasing. There could be a time where it could just be feasible for the city to establish its own law enforcement agency.

This would mean a loss of the contract payment that we now allocate to the county for our police services. I, in my tenure, have always been solidly behind the contract with the Sheriff, and felt that we were getting the best bang for the buck around. But times do change, and prices rise and other options do arise.

As a charter member of the RSVP (Senior Patrol), I am very pleased with our relationship with the San Diego County Sheriff and hope that the alliance continues on a reasonable basis. I think that common sense tells us that it still is economically the best thing for us to do. But, we are partners, not subordinates, and our alternatives are to be decided upon in the light of what is best for the people of Lemon Grove. I would hope that the powers that be in the county government know and appreciate it.

M is for Mayor

Personal comments of Mayor Mary Sessom

One of the most challenging aspects of being mayor is that of communicating effectively with Lemon Grove citizens. This newspaper has been a great way to inform readers about the "goings on" in this city. However, space is a consideration. Often, I cannot share all the details about a project or program. This was the situation with the Lemon Grove City Budget for 1997-1998 adopted unanimously by the council in June.

The budget document is not difficult to understand. However, it is lengthy and so the details that explain income and expenditures are not always included in newspaper articles. This situation allows disenchanted individuals to present their views to a partially informed citizenry and make it sound like absolute fact.

I specifically refer to a letter to the editor sent in by Jack Moore on July 31. Mr. Moore is a long-time resident of this city who has been vocally opposed to the city's budgets. His allegations of the city's mishandling of funds are incorrect as he is using figures from details taken out of context.

The sales tax revenues from Home Depot did allow the city to balance its budget without dipping into savings. However, to say that all this money should be put into streets and sidewalks is to ignore reality. We all know that since 1993 (year of Home Depot), the cost of everything has gone up. Even the bread at Weber's outlet on Broadway is no longer $.99 a loaf. The city is in the same situation.

The cost of our Sheriff's contract in 1993 was $1,986,000. In 1997 it is $2,467,000. This $481,000 difference has been on the rise since 1993. Our fire department (with no increase in staff) is costing us $63,500 more in 1997 than it did in 1993. At the same time our income from Transit Occupancy Tax (motel tax) is $18,000 less than it was in 1993 and our miscellaneous income is also $36,000 less. These figures may not seem high when one is looking at a total budget of $7,668,000, but it takes all these little bits of money (income and expenditures) to make up our budget. One cannot pull out any one piece and hold it up as an example of mismanagement nor can one pull out another piece and say it is an example of effective management. It must all be looked at together.

This City Council is committed to improving Lemon Grove. Streets and sidewalks are a priority. Money was moved from other projects proposed by city staff and put into projects that will improve our infrastructure. Federal and state funds are being used to improve the look of our city, which in turn helps increase property values.

The businesses and residents will be the beneficiaries of all the money spent on the General Plan when it is fully implemented. We have a new park and increased funding for maintenance of all our parks. This city is on the move in a positive way, but it is not easy or cheap and one can't always immediately see the results. For example, I would much rather spend $2,500 putting in new landscaping at my house than spend that money on foundation repairs. I can immediately see the improvements with more plants, but who looks at the foundation?

Yet, we all know that both projects must be done to make a house worth a decent price. A city is really no different. If you want to look at your city budget, we have one in the library and one at City Hall. I or any City Councilmember would be delighted to answer your questions about how your money is being spent on your city.

Sports Beat
with Greg Eichelberger

Santana's own Leon Bender, now a defensive back with Washington State, was recently named to the Associated Press All-America third team. Congratulations to Bender for his selection.

Congratulations also go out a pair of local girls, Meghan Reynolds (El Capitan High School) and Christine Welsh (Christian High), who set all-time scoring records in leading their respective water polo teams to victory. Reynolds tallied nine times to lead her 4-0 Vaqueros to a 15-2 trouncing of Helix, while Welsh netted seven goals, leading the Patriots to a 13-3 crushing of Monte Vista.

The San Diego Gulls continue to drive towards another title, crushing Bakersfield (coached by Wayne Gretkzy's brother, Keith), 11-0 last Thursday and defeating Fresno on Sunday. Head coach Steve Martinson was quick to play down the fact that few teams are really challenging the Taylor Cup champions (18-3-1), so far.

"There's a long time left in the season," he said. "The competition is tough, but we're just on a different level right now." Just how good they really are will be seen this Sunday (6:05 p.m. at the Sports Arena) as they take on the Tacoma Sabercats, who are currently in second place in the North Division with a 12-3-1 record. Fans who show up also have the opportunity to skate with the team after the game.

A team without such luck is the Grossmont College Griffins men's basketball squad, who lost to the Orange Coast College Pirates last week, 86-59, to fall to 5-5. "You can't play this game like you're playing chess," Grossmont head coach Rick Wilkerson was heard to say for no apparent reason. Being out rebounded by the Bucs, 52-28, didn't help the Griffs' cause, either.

While on the subject of the Griffs, freshman midfielder, Jen Garcia, was named to the NSCA/Umbro California All-Regional Women's Soccer team. Another local young lady, Alyssa Fredrick, a Christian High grad, and Sophia Sledge, a Santana alumnus, are both making waves for the SDSU Aztecs basketball team, each averaging nine points per game for the 2-3 squad.

A personal, as well as area, note. Those going to the Holiday Bowl on Dec. 29 will have the chance to see the Missouri Tigers (7-4) against the Colorado State Rams (10-2). "Big deal," you may say, but, I'm from Missouri, and they haven't made a post-season appearance since 1983, when, ironically, they lost 21-17 to Steve Young and BYU in, you guessed it, the Holiday Bowl. So, for this scribbler, it's about time. As far as CSU, its starting QB, Moses Moreno, among others, is from San Diego, so there's the local angle again.

Still time to attend the Grossmont Foothillers alumni baseball game, barbecue and celebration, Dec. 20, from 9 a.m. - 3 p.m. For more information, call Rob Phillips at 442-0132.

The Chargers, after a humiliating 14-3 loss last week against Atlanta, had one more chance to salvage their self-respect by going up against play-off-bound Kansas City last Sunday. Unfortunately, they were again trampled by the Chiefs,29-7.

And you can fill me in on just what's going on in your life, athletic-wise, I mean, by calling 390-7103 or E-mailing ikeforum@juno.com. Until that happens, though, have a great sports week.

Under-14 girls fast pitch team seeks players, coaches

The San Diego Extreme, a new independent fast pitch traveling softball team for girls between 11 and 13 years of age (under 14), is now being formed in the Spring Valley/La Mesa area.

In addition to qualifying players the team has a need for experienced pitching fielding and hitting assistant coaches.

Girls whose 14th birthday is before Sept. 1, 1998 who wish to part of the team may try out for the team during February. for the team's first spring season, which runs from March to mid-June.

The team has indicated that it will only accept players who are serious about the game, talented, hard-working and extremely motivated.

The team philosophy is "based on principles of solid training, fundamentals, teamwork, old-fashioned 'hustle' and a dedication to individual and team excellence."

The team has indicated that players must meet the following standards:

Outfielders – must be able to throw accurately from short left field to home in less than four seconds.

Infielders – must be able to throw accurately from deep short to first base in less than 3.25 seconds.

All field players must be able to run from home to first in less than four seconds, run home to home in less than 17 seconds, do 15 pushups, do 30+ crunches in one minute and run 1/4 mile in under 2 1/4 minutes.

Pitchers – must meet four of six criteria – 45+ mph fastball, curveball, riseball and dropball; and have change up at least 5 mph slower than minimum pitching speed and have good pitching form and accurate movement on the ball.

Catchers – must meet four of these six criteria – be able to throw to second accurately in less than three seconds, run from home to first (in gear) in less than five seconds and also meet the same criteria as do field players.

In addition, all players are expected to have exceptional attitude and inner drive, major-league hustle, commitment, dedication and "coach-ability."

Lions Club miniature golf tournament raises $1,000 for Center for the Blind

by Joe Naiman

The scores of the First Annual Highway Open Miniature Golf Classic were irrelevant and the word "handicap" took on a new meaning, but the payout was significant when the the Highway Lions Club, at its Dec. 9 meeting, donated $1,000 to the San Diego Center for the Blind (founded in 1972).

The Sept. 21 golf tournament actually raised over $2,000 and some proceeds were also donated to the Lions Optometric Vision Clinic, the Share Vision Program, Children's Hospital Vision Screening Program and the Blind Recreation Center.

But the primary beneficiary was the Center for the Blind, which picked up the check and five certificates of appreciation at the club meeting at Tyler's Taste of Texas in El Cajon.

"We know the center does a lot of good; we've seen what's going on," said Jerry Mosier, president of the Highway Lions. He added that just to see what they do is remarkable.

The San Diego Center for the Blind, which currently has about 1,100 students, teaches its students how to dress, identify money, and perform other functions generally taken for granted by sighted people.

"We're the first step in the rehab process after the doctor says: 'There's nothing more that I can do for you'," said the center director, Kim Gibbens.

Five volunteers, all blind themselves and graduates of the center program, served as "Official Coaches" for the Sept. 21 tournament at the Family Fun Center in El Cajon.

The golfers played the different holes with various visual handicaps. Besides playing blind on one hole, golfers were fitted with masks to simulate macular degeneration, tumors and other diseases.

"The students really enjoyed it because it gave them a chance to say thank you to the Lions for their support," said Gibbens. "I think it really made it clear to the Lions that attended exactly what their money was going for."

Lions Club International was formed in 1917, and at their 1925 convention they accepted Helen Keller's challenge to become the "Knights of the Blind."

The Highway Lions Club was assisted by the sponsorships of the Spring Valley, Rancho Santee, El Cajon Valley and Lunar Lions Clubs, as well as the sponsorships of several community businesses.

The volunteers who will receive the Lions' certificates of appreciation are Janet Rouse, Anthony DeLeon, Jean Teague, Marian Franz, and Kathy Shipkowski.

The money raised by the Lions Club will go directly to the teaching and training programs for the students.
